

ABSTRACT

The present invention includes a evaluation calculation unit (11) for calculating the evaluation of an intellectual property based on intellectual property data and evaluation parameter data, an authorization-fee calculation unit (12) for calculating an authorization fee necessary in the future for authorizing and maintaining the right of the intellectual property based on the intellectual property data and cost calculation data, and a management unit (14) for, in response to event information input, comparing the evaluation value calculated with the authorization fee calculated when the event occurs, and managing the intellectual property based on this compared result.